Comment. During the 10 days of observation, a total of 78 refrigerator cars with butter and 170 carloads of grain arrived in East Germany. The import quota of 22,000 tons of butter and lard scheduled for July 1953 was not fulfilled by 31 August 1953. [Redacted] Until that date there had arrived 1,640 refrigerator cars with a total load of 19,680 tons or 12 tons per car, leaving 2,320 tons of about 200 refrigerator carloads still to be delivered. The volume of 6,095 carloads of grain in July 1953 dropped to 1,495 carloads in August. It could not be determined whether only part of the shipments were covered. Another source reported a total of 4,757 carloads to have arrived in August 1953.
